

Widening a circuit has a ceiling

Metro distance, contiguous placement. The curve flattens once the per-rank share reaches the NIC line rate; past that, width is inert.

A fixed stitch erodes as the cluster grows

120 km, 800 Gbit/s, held constant. Contention scales with the cluster and the circuit does not, so a two-site result does not transfer upward.

